CSA honors ‘Hometown Heroes’ at recognition breakfast Sept. 11

Written by Town Crier Report Wednesday, 02 September 2009

The Community Services Agency has scheduled its annual Hometown Heroes recognition breakfast 7:15-9 a.m. Sept. 11 at the Crowne Plaza Cabaña, 4290 El Camino Real, Palo Alto.

CSA’s 2009 Hometown Heroes are Mary Lou De Natale, Ed.D, advocate and coordinator for the University of San Francisco’s geriatric nursing program and student nursing intern program coordinator at CSA for more than 10 years, and El Camino Hospital, for its commitment to community health care, especially to the underserved.

Jose Antonio Vargas, a Pulitzer Prize-winning graduate of Mountain View High School, is the scheduled speaker.

Tickets are $45. Tables of 10 and sponsorship opportunities are available.

Attendees are asked to bring a canned good to donate to CSA’s Food & Nutrition Center.

CSA serves needy residents in Mountain View, Los Altos and Los Altos Hills.

Local groups are responding to the Community Services Agency’s call for more food donations for the needy.

A local Pop Warner team, the Mountain View Marauders, are helping to bolster CSA’s food supplies by organizing a food drive at their first home game.

The food drive is scheduled 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday at Graham Middle School, 1175 Castro Street, Mountain View.

Meanwhile, Ellen Biolsi, owner of Cranberry Scoop in downtown Los Altos, has placed a barrel in front of her store to collect healthful foods in cans and packages for CSA’s Food & Nutrition Center. Cranberry Scoop is located at 295 State St.
